Current All Saints' families explain why All Saints is invaluable to their children's futures:

"All Saints has been a great environment for our children. They have thrived in the family-like environment, making life-long friends and building positive relationships with their teachers. The academic and religious education are among the best and afford our children the ability to continue to grow in their faith while continuing their traditional learning. As parents, we have felt welcome and enjoyed participating in school events as well as joining committees to really have an impact on our family school experience."

Charisse and Albert Matthews, parents to Jocelyn, grade 7, and Corbin, grade 4. Mrs. Matthews has served as a PTO officer, including President, for several years.

"It has been such a huge blessing from God to me to have had the opportunity to have my children here at All Saints Catholic School, especially being aware that ASCS is highly better in every way academically and in religious education for our young. For all my kids who have gone to ASCS there has always been more opportunities for them to learn more rather than to just have class time for learning. I would absolutely recommend to everyone to have their children at ASCS."

Emilia Aguilar Luis with her husband, Silvero Luis, parents to Xochitl, grade 7, Valentin, grade 2, and Maximo, grade 1. Another son, Abraham, is a graduate of All Saints and Benedictine College Prep and serves in the U.S. Marines.

"As a former school social worker, I often saw students flounder in larger schools where they were simply a number. My husband and I wanted something different for our kids, and All Saints has been the perfect fit for our family. Our three children are thriving in an environment where they are known and loved, where their strengths and weaknesses are appreciated and supported, and where they are learning to cooperate, work, learn and laugh with students representing the diversity of the world we live in. We love All Saints!"

Tracey Wingold, with husband Brian Wingold, parents to Maya, grade 6 and Sean, grade 4, and Blaise, who graduated from All Saints and attends Richmond Community High.
